A West Virginia Debate on Unitiversalism.

A debate is going on on this subject in the columns of the Upshur County Banner. The champion of Universalism occupies a portion of the last issue of the Banner with a sketch of the conception of hell that is still held by a good many people. We quote from it as follows:

When I think of the infinite punishment of human, immortal beings—perhaps a father, a mother, or a sister or a brother,—in an ocean of fire without shore for hope of excape, or bottom to its depths of anguish;—when I remember that over it drive unsubsiding cyclones, red, and raining fiery spumes swept from it a surface;—when I remember that to very life, and held the columns in the colored on private that over it drive unsubsiding cyclones, red, and raining fiery spumes swept from it a surface;—when I remember that its billows dash bish—ralling mountains. brother,—in an ocean of fire without shore for hope of escape, or bottom to its depths of anguish;—when I remember that over it drive unsubsiding cyclones, red, and raining fiery spumes awept from its surface;—when I remember that its billows dash high-rolling mountains with furid chasms between, each chasms a separate hell, crest and slope and base alive with souls all sheeted and careed with fire—fire running in consums a separate hell, crest and slope and base alive with souls all sheeled and gorged with fire—fire running in their veins; fire filling their lungs; fire mingling with the substance of their brains;—when I think that they are conscious, animate flames, while over the hottoccan leans the Lord of Love to inhale the smell of their burnings;—when I remember that they cry to him who looks gloatingly over them, "Falker of success, is it not comphy?" and He marshals his elect in their sight to answer with a derisive shout, in which they distinguish the voices of parents and children, husbands and wives, "NEVER! NEVER!"—when I think of all this as the teachings of the Lord Jesus, it well nigh crases my own brain, and I go from my meditations, wondering, doubting whether its advocates be human or demon.

Editors Intelligencer:

Counting the returns yesterday, it was found that Wright had a majority of two over Barnes for Recorder. Being so close, and having found some errors in the figures on lirst examination, it was an inducement to look for more errors. An examination to-day resulted in finding more errors and in favor of Barnes, giving him a majority of two. As Wright has the certificate from the "Returning Board," It becomes a nice question whether the Judges can go behind the Board to correct errors. Judging from past experience, it is not good policy to beyo behind the returns." It might cast a "Hayes" over the feelings of the ousted candidate.
